.Correlation of histologic and clinical pessary features in 94 women with pessary failure. To identify clinical factors associated with treatment failure of vaginal pessaries among women with pelvic organ prolapse (POP). A retrospective analysis of clinical and histologic data. Seven hundred seventy-two consecutive women referred to one women's urogynecology clinic with POP were enrolled prospectively in a randomized controlled trial of sacrospinous hysteropexy for POP. The clinical factors evaluated were menopausal status, parity, history of prior pessary use, weight change since pessary insertion, method of pessary insertion, and placement of the pessary. The histologic factors were the presence of myofibroblasts (Fasching cells), vascular congestion (vascular congestion index), stromal condensation (stromal index), endocervical stromal keratinization, and lymphocytes (lymphocytic index). Eight hundred fifty-eight pessaries were placed. Treatment failure occurred in 94 women (12%) and was more common in nulliparous (p Terrell Jackson, an attorney who represents the car dealership employees in the case, said he had not seen any of the remarks yet, and therefore could not comment. He referred The Washington Post to an article in the Chicago Tribune that quotes an employee saying, "I am speechless. Are we a bunch of animals? Did we want this? I don't know." The Department of Justice is supposed to be prosecuting Zimmerman, but the case is now before a special prosecutor, on motion of the state attorney, who is not the official in
